City council meeting days and times to change

At its Nov. 16 meeting, the Lemon Grove City Council voted to change its meeting dates from the first and third Mondays of each month to those Tuesdays, with a monthly afternoon information session replacing the noontime "brown bag" sessions.

Also, regular meeting times will change from 7:30 to 7 p.m.; the informal meeting in which city staff will brief council members will be held the fourth Tuesday of each month at 4 p.m. in the Community Center.

A 3-2 vote (Council members Bob Burns and Craig Lake objecting), followed discussion which centered around the brown bags and the legality of these informal meetings.

"I'm concerned with the borderline legality of the brown bags," said Mayor Brian Cochran about the meetings which have existed since incorporation as a way for city staff to inform council members on the latest issues.

The question over whether council members should be meeting on an informal basis to discuss issues came about following the vote to rename City Hall which occurred when a "special meeting" was held in conjunction with the brown bag.

Though technically open to the public, brown bags are non-noticed except when held as special meetings, and usually do not involve any action by council.

Held in a small City Hall conference room, these meetings do not facilitate attendance by the public.

"We're only paying lip service to the Brown Act if we hear about issues before a regular meeting and form a consensus ahead of time. Brown bags were important when we were a new city, but its time to move on," he said.

Cochran then suggested that a third monthly evening meeting could be added to replace the brown bag sessions.

Councilman Lake was the first to object to scratching brown bags.

"I don't see why we have to do away with them; additional meetings means more staff time and expense. If we just dispense with having special meetings at the brown bags it would be okay." Councilman Burns shared his concerns, stating that the minor change of providing meeting agendas and noticing the brown bags in keeping with the Brown Act would be more appropriate than discontinuing them.

"I'm satisfied with the way it is now which we've been doing for 15 years. The latest catastrophe is unfortunate, but we don't have to throw the baby out with the bath water."

When asked about the legality of holding brown bag meetings, City Attorney Don McLean responded that as long as meeting agendas were provided and council members discussed only the items on those agendas, no violations of the Brown Act would occur.

Cochran's approved motion called for a monthly informal meeting at the Community Center to replace brown bag meetings, as well as changing the regular evening council meetings to Tuesdays. He stated that holding meetings on Tuesdays would give council members more time to review meeting agendas and an extra day to request more information from city staff, if needed. Also, Monday holidays would no longer require council meetings to be rescheduled.

Meet your elected officials, courtesy of the LWV

The League of Women Voters will host its annual "Meet Your Elected Officials" event for elected representatives on Thursday, Dec. 10.

The pre-holiday social, sponsored by the Grossmont-Cajon Valley LWV, is open to the public.

"It's a great opportunity for people in the community to meet our newly-elected representatives and other officials," says Marian Zeldin, League president.

Invitations are extended to local, state, and federal officials under the East County jurisdictions.

The guest roster will include representatives from the Board of Supervisors, the cities of El Cajon, La Mesa, Lemon Grove, Santee; state Senate, state Assembly and Congressional districts; board members from the Grossmont College District, elementary and high school districts; planning groups; Grossmont Hospital Board and other special districts.

The social will be from 5:30-7:30, at the Kendalls, 1603 Hacienda Dr., El Cajon. The cost is a $2 donation.

RSVP: 440-1497 or 463-6383.

United Way grant and other donations used to beautify Senior Center

The Lemon Grove Senior Center now boasts a beautiful, small garden area, thanks to a United Way project and donations from local businesses and individuals.

According to Elizabeth Giovanetti, volunteer coordinator for Mesa-Valley-Grove Senior Nutrition, the $600 garden resulted from cooperation with the United Way's "Hands on San Diego Day" in mid-September.

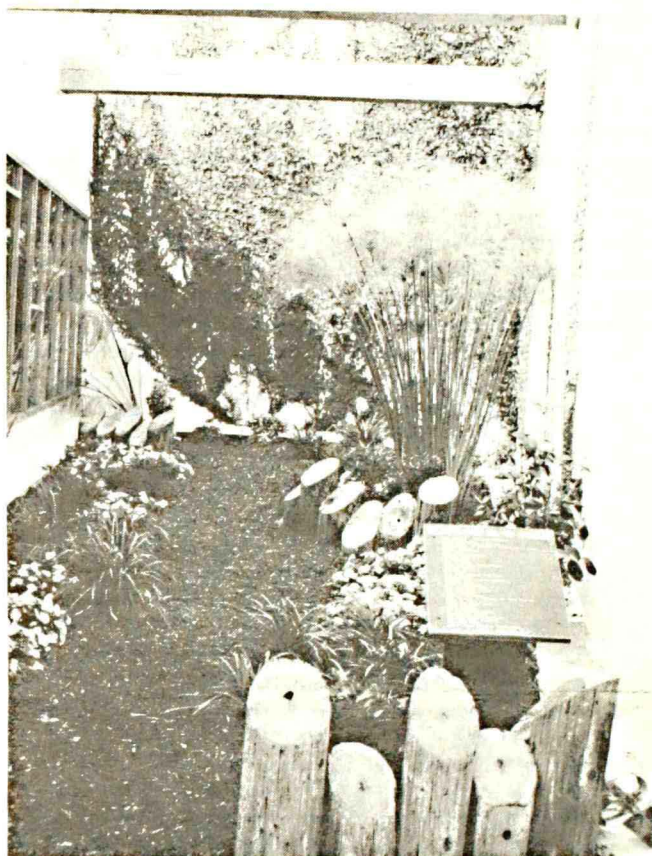

"Through our senior programs and through donations, we raised the money," Giovanetti explained, noting that United Way "executives on loan" did the actual hands-on labor.

These were six women executives from corporations in the community who were "on loan" for this project, and spent about four hours doing the work, said Giovanetti.

A plaque near the front of the partially-enclosed garden bears the names of the women as well as others instrumental in bringing the garden to fruition.

Many of the plants were donated by Hunter's Nursery and Suni Sullivan of El Cajon donated the landscape design.

According to Giovanetti, this is the first major project the Senior Center has attempted through the United Way program. She noted that originally, an elevated garden for the rear of property was proposed, but concerns caused the project to be changed.

"We would have needed to put in a gated fence in order to block access to the property and keep the garden from being vandalized, so it would have been too expensive," she said.

Supervisor-elect anxious for change to begin

by Dianne Jacob

My deepest appreciation to the thousands of voters who have placed their confidence in me to serve as the next Supervisor representing the 2nd District. It is truly a special honor and a clear mandate for change.

The first change that must occur is to take back control of county government so that we, the taxpayers, are in charge, not the bureaucrats. Getting the bureaucracy under control is my number one task.

My plan to downsize the bureaucracy by imposing a ratio of county staff in relation to population, a zero-based budgeting system, a 10 percent cut in administrative salaries $60,000 and above, including my own, demanding that we have a planning department that works, eliminating fraud and waste and collecting the 680,000 outstanding court fines and warrants will be at the top of my list when I assume office on Jan. 4, 1993.

During the campaign, I identified millions of dollars in potential cuts and savings in the county budget. Fighting crime is my top budget priority. However, my approach to making our communities safe has two parts; one addressing the need for adequate enforcement and certain punishment, the other designed to prevent crime and reduce the number of people entering the criminal justice system.

We must increase the number of deputy sheriffs patrolling our streets and neighborhoods, double the number of homicide investigators and street narcotics and gang detail personnel, boost the number of jail beds in order to operate the new East Mesa jail facility at full capacity, building a criminal justice system that works.

On the prevention side, we need to invest more in keeping our children out of the criminal justice system and giving the best opportunities we can to become healthy, happy, productive citizens so that they can be future taxpayers, not tax-takers. It's an investment that can pay substantial dividends to taxpayers. For example, it costs over three times as much to hold a child at juvenile hall as it does to educate that child in a classroom - and the discrepancy jumps to over 6 to 1 when a child graduates to state prison. Getting our children on the right track is the best investment we can make!

Finally, our entire country - San Diego County included - is facing a serious economic crisis. In large part, it is a crisis caused by government. With a national debt so large it would require $16,000 from every American to pay off, our economy is literally strangling to death on government spending.

The problem with government is so big - and so widespread - there can be no quick fixes; no cosmetic solutions. We can no longer afford "business as usual" at any level of government.

Our challenge and my pledge is to completely redefine government; to return accountability and control to tax-payers, not tax-spenders, to get government off the back of businesses and to make county government work for you, the taxpayers.

Broadway Antique Mall has a strong first year

Broadway Antique Mall co-owner Jerry May reports at the one-year anniversary of his opening that business is great despite the economy, and plans for expansion are on the near horizon.

"Our 30 spaces and 11 cases are full, and we have dealers on a waiting list," says May, whose store is a montage of booths rented to merchants.

From glassware to vintage juke boxes, his Broadway mall features a little of everything, with prices ranging from $5 to $4,000.

The idea for the family-owned store grew out of what May calls a weekend hobby.

"My mom had a booth in an Ocean Beach mall, and I'd help out there. I was working in construction, but when I fell off a scaffold and couldn't do any lifting anymore, I knew I had to look for something else to do," he explained.

That something opened last fall with 11 dealers.

"It's a lot of hard work - mentally - but we're doing real well," he said, indicating that he'd like to expand the store soon into some nearby space.

Martinizing stores to collect and clean clothes for the needy

Martinizing franchisees Bob Witco of San Carlos and Reitha Canty of Lemon Grove pose with Father Joe Carroll to promote drive. With 17 years as a franchisee, Canty is the oldest in East County, while Witco just opened his store and is the newest East County franchisee.

One Hour Martinizing Dry Cleaning stores throughout San Diego and surrounding areas are collecting and cleaning gently-used sweaters and jackets for distribution to the needy by Father Joe Carroll and the St. Vincent de Paul/Joan Kroc Center, through Dec. 31. Owners, including Lemon Grove's Reitha Canty of D & R One Hour Martinizing of 6935 Federal, display collection bins in each store lobby for all donated items. Receipts are available for tax purposes.

"It's a natural tie-in," said Martinizing Vice President Jerald Laesser. "Customers searching their closets for dry cleaning, can usually find some clothing item that can be donated. This program makes it convenient for them to take care of both tasks in one trip," he added. "Martinizing is happy to provide the service for both those donating and the needy."

Once cleaned, items will be delivered to and distributed by Father Joe Carroll at the St. Vincent de Paul/Joan Kroc Center, a community located in downtown San Diego providing services to the area's homeless and needy.

One Hour Martinizing stores are members of the world's largest national dry cleaning franchise, headquartered in Cincinnati, Ohio

The La Mesa Library, 8055 University Ave., will hold its events on Tuesdays, Dec. 8 and 22, at 10:30 a.m. for preschoolers and at 3:30 p.m. for school-age children. Dec. 8, will feature holiday crafts and Dec. 22, the puppet play, "Claude the Dog." B-Words Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Vets parade

With apologies to those who do not happen to have the same likes and dislikes that I do, I am moved to again report on the annual Armed Forces Day parade. I am very proud to take part in it and immensely pleased that the American Veteran is acclaimed and appreciated on that day at least.

On Saturday, Nov. 14, I was honored to ride in the WW II vintage Jeep that represented the City of Lemon Grove in the Parade. To my knowledge it was the only official City entry in the parade. It was driven again by its owner, our own City Manager Jack Shelver, a Korean War Veteran.

I represented WWII and David Allen again was the Vietnam conflict representative. Jack's son, Lt. David Shelver, was to give us a Desert Storm vet to fill out the meager seating capacity of the vehicle but duty again made him unavailable. Maybe next year, we hope.

While considerably smaller than last year's parade which welcomed back the Desert Storm people, it was gratifying to be cheered and saluted by the many who lined the main Broadway

Street in downtown San Diego. We were also well represented with a large float and group of Veterans from VFW Post #6874 here in Lemon Grove, and our new Assemblyman for the 77th District, Tom Connolly. We originally had him committed to riding in the Jeep with us but he got a better offer from Will Hays the parade chairman. It was an open corvette that could also accommodate his pretty wife, Janet. Suffice it to say, she did have some influence in that decision.

Jack's Marine Corps get-up seemed to get the Lions share of the ladies attention, even though he was up against two sailors. One gal even asked if he was married. (must have been the D.I. hat).

The parade mechanics were exceptionally handled by Ken Zier of the American Legion, and his overcoming the amazing logistical obstacles was a wonder to watch. It is rumored that he had help, but I saw none.

Redundancy acknowledged, it was a fun experience and Lemon Grove was well represented. As the past wars fade in to the distant memory, and the likelihood of future wars fading away, it is natural to forget those unpleasant parts of life.

"Time heals all wounds" as they say, and those who lost family members, or body parts, or even just a number of years that were stolen from a young life, do survive and file those hurts away in the recesses of memory.

For each of us, life goes on and we tend to offer up the trials and tribulations that God has allotted to us. For me, I have to buffer the small discomforts that I have felt with the constant knowledge that so many have suffered so much more. Were it not for those who served in my place at Guadalcanal and Normandy, my life could well have been, and even now be much different.

We should offer a prayer of appreciation every day of our lives on behalf of the Veterans of all of our wars, and in their honor try to make their sacrifices not in vain by making this a better world.

As the song goes "Let there be peace on earth, and let it begin with me."

Thanks Flyboys, Dogfaces, Jarheads, and Swabs, past, present, and future.

Commentary

by Paul Treske

After reading the headlines, you wonder why anyone in his right mind would want to be president of these United States? "Clinton has mandate - either use it or lose it." Or, "Clinton already facing pressure to help Russia." Try "Will the right Chicanos be picked?" Maybe, "Some thoughts on Clintonian ethics."

While every critic and pressure group is lining up to make sure its particular agenda comes first, the notorious comic-meisters, having finished with Bush, Quayle and Perot are sharpening their spears to have at the new president, his wife and his running mate.

And he hasn't even taken office yet!

Once upon a time, we believed that virtually every American boy (girls were excluded, of course) grew up wanting to be president of the United States. Now, if a kid (boy or girl) suggests this, his parents probably trundle him/her off to the friendly neighborhood psychiatrist!

Of course "change" has been the watchword of this election and positive change must be expected. This, together with all his campaign promises, hangs like an albatross around the president-elect's neck and there will probably be little tolerance for failure.

It is the dilemma of Congress that looms most ominously over Clinton's first 100 days. The end to congressional gridlock was one of the most appealing promises of a Clinton presidency. With a solid Democratic majority in both houses he could, so the concept went, push through a plethora of much needed legislation aimed at economic revival, health insurance and deficit reduction. True, he has some

The honeymoon may be cut short

50 freshman legislators elected alongside himself to count on for support. But the old guard, particularly in the Senate, has long looked askance at an outsider coming up the hill and telling them what to do! In addition, as one TV commentator recently noted, only half jokingly, "everyone in Congress already has his own health bill."

To add to his troubles, Clinton will undoubtedly find that the "old guard" of Congressional Democrats has a social agenda far more liberal than the new president himself. In fact, the basically conservative (despite what Bush kept saying) Clinton may frequently find more support for his agenda on the GOP side of the room.

Compounding the whole problem is the increasing international mess hovering nearby. The new president would dearly love to concentrate on domestic issues, but a floundering Russia, shooting Serbs, starving Somalis and furious French farmers may take an ever-increasing share of his attention.

On the positive side, Clinton's election itself has produced an overall growth of optimism in this country. A sure first sign is the predicted healthy increase in Christmas sales, a sure indication that folks are feeling a bit more optimistic. How long this will last will, of course, depend on what happens in that first 100 days. Right now, the president-elect can play a little golf, make surprise visits to economically-plagued neighborhoods and, in general, bask in the warmth of the presses good will. But just over the horizon a multitude of difficult problems are waiting. Why in the world would anyone want to be president just now?

From Where I Sit

A time to celebrate

by Frank Andrews

The thing I liked best about my military service was the "coming home party." I was sworn into the Army Air Corp on New Year's Eve, 1943. After 2 1/2 months of waiting and not being able to go anywhere or make any plans, I was finally called to active duty on March 15, 1944. My young bride and our first-born moved in with her folks and I went off to war for 19 months.

At the end of the war, I was ordered to Sioux Falls, South Dakota, the nearest separation center to my home in Minneapolis. We were now considered surplus commodities, and even though we didn't have the minimum 85 discharge points, the government decided to kick us out with the $400 bonus. On my discharge papers it is written, "Available for further military duty," but, thank God, I was never called up again.

I had phoned my wife that I would be home, free and clear, on the following Saturday. There was much tension among the troops at Sioux Falls. Some of the older overseas vets with lots of eligibility points were violently jealous of us young "mavericks" with very few discharge points getting out before them. Some of my buddies even got beaten up because of the hard feelings.

Saturday finally came, and I wasn't any closer to my home. I called my wife again and told her of the conditions and that I'd get there for my homecoming party "come hell or high water." The passenger list for the flight which I needed to catch was on a standby basis, and I wasn't high enough on the list to get a seat. Just before the plane to Minneapolis was to take off, I pleaded with my buddy, Alred, with tears in my eyes. "Hey, buddy please let me have your seat." He fell for it, and I boarded instead of him.

I arrived at my in-laws house in a cab from the airport just as my wife and the rest of her family were coming out the door to go to the big homecoming party for me. I asked hurriedly, "How could you possibly have my party without me?"

She answered kind of apologetically, "The hall has been rented, the caterers have all the food prepared, and I think that the orchestra is already playing our song. How could we cancel out now?"

I took just long enough to slip into my old "Glen plaid" and my shiny Ox-blood red "wing tips" which still fit me to a tee. I was so glad to be "free and clear" of the service once again that I really had something to celebrate - and I did.

I don't remember much towards the end of the festivities but I knew I had a good time as I felt so sick all the next day.

Haircuts, high-tops and humable music

by Joseph Walker

Don't look now, but I think my generation gap is showing.

I got my first clue a few weeks ago when my 13-year-old son, Joe, came home from the barber shop ... er, excuse me, hair stylist, with a haircut that looked like someone had put a bowl on his head and cut around the edges. So of course I did what any self-respecting father of my generation would do under the circumstances.

I laughed.

"What's wrong with you?" Joe wanted to know.

"I'm sorry, son," I said, still chuckling. "I don't mean to be cruel. It's just that ... well, your hair looks like someone put a bowl on your head and cut around the edges."

"Oh yeah?" he asked. Then he smiled broadly. "Thanks!"

I was confused. When I was a teenager, accusing someone of having a bowl cut was usually a prelude to fisticuffs. But Joe seemed to be flattered by the charge.

"Thanks, honey," Anita whispered. "He was so afraid you wouldn't like it."

"I don't," I whispered back.

"You said it looks like someone put a bowl on his head and cut around the edges."

"That's right," I said. "It wasn't a compliment."

"Well, that's the way it's supposed to look. Besides, it only cost $8 ..."

"Eight dollars?!?" Suddenly my whisper was much more intense. "What's the matter, didn't we have any bowls here at home?"

She gave me her most withering "get-a-life" look.

"OK, OK," I said. "But just tell me one thing: why is it that everything that is cool today was totally uncool when we were teenagers?"

"What's this 'we' stuff, old man?" Anita corrected. "Remember, you're the one who knows all the words to all the songs on the 'Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band' album and who still can't get used to the idea that 'Bonanza' isn't on TV Sunday nights."

She's right, of course. I should have known better than to fall in love with someone whose favorite Golden Oldies have a (shudder!) disco beat.

But the fact remains, the world of fad and fancy has turned around considerably since I was a teenager. Twenty years ago, black high-top tennis shoes were definitely uncool. So were baggy pants, baggy shirts and baggy anything else. The only guys who wore baseball hats were baseball players, and then, only during a game. Hair styles were long, underwear was worn underneath clothing and most of the popular songs of the day at least had a melody line with which you could hum along if you didn't know the words.

Ever try humming rap music? I did once. Nearly broke my hummer. I haven't been able to hum anything trickier than "Amazing Grace" ever since.

Of course, the minute I start talking like this, a big echo-chamber effect starts reverberating in my mind. It's surreal, like I've heard these words before. And I have - from my mom and dad. About 20 years ago, as I recall. Seems they were just as puzzled by the things that appealed to my generation as I am by the things that appeal to Joe's. And while some of their concerns and reservations have proven to be sadly justified (such as the long-term implications of the drug counter-culture and "the sexual revolution"), for the most part we've muddled through. We've grown up, we've assumed adult responsibilities and we're starting to make significant contributions to the world in which we live.

Heck, one of us is even going to be taking up residence in the White House.

When I was in high school I was in a play called "An Over-praised Season." I don't remember much about the piece, but there was one line that has stayed with me through the years: "Lots of people are convinced that our generation is going to hell. And maybe we are. If we're not, we certainly should be. After all, younger generations have been going to hell for centuries, and there's no reason why we should be left out, is there?"

Joe's generation is entitled to the same privilege, I guess. Which is not to say that parents, teachers and neighbors should stand idly by while young people experiment with fads and fancies that could endanger their future, if not their lives. But we need to pick our battles carefully. If we don't like the way they choose to express themselves simply because it's different from our own, maybe we need to be patient and tolerant. Indeed, our teaching will be enhanced if we can do it from a platform of mutual respect and appreciation.

Haircuts, high-tops and humable music notwithstanding.

Grossmont College presents 'Toad of Toad Hall'

Green is the color for trouble this holiday season when the madcap Mr. Toad zooms to life Dec. 3 in the Stagehouse Theatre production, "Toad of Toad Hall." Based on the classic children's story, "The Wind in the Willows," the play features Toad's loyal friends Badger and Mole, and his villainous enemies, the nasty Weasels.

"Toad of Toad Hall" is the Grossmont College Theatre Department's holiday production that is designed to create happy holiday memories for young and old alike. In preparing this version of Toad Hall for the stage, children's author A.A. Milne (creator of Winnie the Pooh) included a host of the story's original loveable and hate-able animal characters.

Grossmont College Theatre Instructor Clark Mires directs the play. Two Grossmont High School alums are members of the Toad Hall cast. Newsah Farsi, who graduated in 1990, plays the young girl, Marigold. Robert Hayhurst, a 1992 graduate, is double cast as the Chief Ferret and Squire Squirrel. La Mesa resident Heather Hire has the roles of Mrs. Fieldmouse and the Bargewoman. Becca Branges, also of La Mesa, plays flute in the productions "Wind in the Willows Musicians" ensemble.

"Toad of Toad Hall" plays at the Stagehouse Theatre on the Grossmont College campus Dec. 3-5 and 8-12 at 7 p.m. with matinees Dec. 5, 6 and 12 at 1 p.m. Tickets are $9 and $7, and are available from the Fine Arts Box Office, phone 465-1700, ext. 234. Grossmont College is located at 8800 Grossmont College Drive in El Cajon.

Grossmont Union High School District Board news by June M. Mott

With an agenda packed with 65 items and a reception honoring Dr. Ken Whitcomb, retiring board member, and Tony Orosco who was not successful in gaining election to the Board after 1 1/2 years of appointed service, the Board had a full evening's work.

John Strasser was hired as a new computer studies teacher at Granite Hills for one semester. Thirty-four temporary teachers were hired to teach classes in Adult School. Two classified positions - one as secretary at Mt. Miguel and one as intermediate clerk at Santana - were filled as replacements for employees who retired or resigned. The following four classified personnel retired or moved away from the district: Karen Burnworth, Monte Vista's school facilities manager; Evelyn Koske, athletic equipment attendant at Helix; Melissa Wiley, an executive secretary in Personnel; and Wanda Zimmerman, senior secretary at the Instructional Resource Center.

A classified employee received a two-week suspension without pay for violating Governing Board Policy GCN.

Contract reopeners with SEIU, Local 102, have been completed and the Board was asked to approve the following reopener: a .75 percent cost of living adjustment retroactive to July 1, 1992 for the 112 employees in the unit; a 1 percent additional salary adjustment retroactive to July 1, 1992 for 30 employees in the groundskeepers and lead groundskeepers' job classifications as a result of a survey revealing that these jobs ranked near the bottom in a recent countywide salary survey; and the reclassification of 11 senior custodians to head custodians, retroactive to July 1, 1992 since their responsibilities have increased considerably during the last few years. This will mean a three percent salary improvement for them. The total cost for this item is $39,539.

An adjustment in salary for Adult Education hourly teachers to take effect on July 1, 1993 due to passage of AB 1891 was approved. The 2 percent addition will bring these salaries into alignment with ROP teachers who had received a 5 percent salary improvement. In 1987 the Board approved salary schedules to reduce the differential by 2.5 percent and again in 1989 by another 1.25 percent. The estimated annual cost will be $41,169 but will not affect the general fund as it will be included in the '93-'94 line item budget.

The firm of Touchstone and Brown confirmed that the year-end closing financial statements accurately reflected the financial condition of the district for '91-'92. The cost of this year's audit was $12,000. Mandated by the State Department of Finance, the audit requires the use of state licensed accountants and covers the district's general fund, the Adult Ed program, the ASB, the food services, internal controls and practices, state and federal compliance requirements, electronic data processing, long- and short-term borrowing, vacation and sick-leave benefits, employee retirement programs and the reserves. The primary purpose for conducting the audit is to make sure the district has conformed with generally accepted audit procedures/standards, as well as accounting principles consistent with the previous year. The Board accepted the "certification" from Touchstone and Brown.

Article 2. Administration Board policy was given final approval.

Modifications to Policy IHF-E were accepted and approved by the Board. These include: the ROP program classes will not be subject to the 70-unit limit on credits earned during the regular school year; and, principals will have the authority to accept credits earned by students who previously attended foreign schools or schools outside the jurisdiction of regional accrediting commissions. Since these modifications do not impose new requirements for graduation, they will take effect immediately. Currently, 220 units are required for graduation.

Profiles in Performance, a focus on student performance indicators, was presented to the Board for information and acceptance.

In 1990 the district received a Scope, Sequence and Coordination Act grant for restructuring the science curriculum at Helix and Monte Vista. Charles Downing of Monte Vista is in the process of preparing additional grant funds to continue implementing changes in the science curriculum. A list of priority needs has been developed to include curriculum planning time, staff development, and assessment instruments. One of the long-term goals is to convert the entire science department to the integrated approach of teaching science.

The request for a $10,680 grant from the California Educational Initiatives Fund, will be used to develop a self-sustaining pond community for scientific observation on the Monte Vista campus. This will fund the construction of the pond, provide stipends for curriculum development, and provide for duplication and distribution of materials. Community resources will be sought to donate fencing and specimens. There is no impact on the general fund. The Board approved the submission of the grant.

The Board granted approval for the Mt. Miguel Bio-Chem Honors class to attend the Yosemite Institute at Yosemite National Park from March 7-13, 1993 with their instructor, Mr. Larry Nordell. The Institute is founded on the belief that human behavior systems and human value systems are the prime determinants to the quality of man's environment. The emphasis is on environmental understanding through education and communication. Total cost is $700 for 10 days of substitute time. Students earn the $375 cost through fund raising. All class members fund raise and have equal opportunities to take the trip.

Board approval to extend maintenance of districtwide telephones was given and instruction to seek formal bids for a maintenance contract that will provide continuity from year-to-year at the most competitive pricing was also given.

For the remainder of the '92-'93 school year, Gary Schwartzwald, an industrial technology teacher at El Cajon Valley High School, has been selected as the Regional Occupational Coordinator for San Diego County's Office of Education. The Board approved the loan of Schwartzwald to the county. There is no impact on the budget as the County Office will reimburse the district for all of his salary and benefits.

The remainder of the Board's agenda will be included in the next Board column.

All members of the Board and the Superintendent will attend the California School Board Association's annual Education Conference Dec. 3-6 in Long Beach. I will also be attending the Delegate Assembly meeting from Dec. 1-3 in Long Beach.

Foothills PTA sponsored a reception for Dr. Whitcomb and Tony Orosco after the Nov. 19 Board meeting.

The next meeting will be on Dec. 10 and will include election of Board officers. The public is welcome at the 7 p.m. meeting in Grossmont High's cafeteria. Happy Thanksgiving!
